

Patient Health Report

Patient Name: Alex Johnson

Age / Gender: 28 / Female

Date: 30 March 2026

Contact Number: +91-XXXXXXXXXX

Main Concern / Symptoms

- Persistent fever for the past 3 days
- Mild headache and body pain
- General weakness and fatigue
- Occasional sore throat

Detailed Symptoms

- Fever ranging between 100–101°F
- Headache mainly in the forehead region
- Body aches, especially in the legs and lower back
- Mild throat irritation while swallowing
- Symptoms worsen in the evening
- No cough or breathing difficulty

Medical History

- No major chronic illnesses
- No previous surgeries
- No known drug allergies
- History of seasonal viral fever once last year
- Family history of diabetes (father)

Current Medications

- Paracetamol 650 mg
- Twice daily after food
- Started 2 days ago

Recent Changes

- Reduced appetite

- Slight sleep disturbance due to fever
- Feeling tired during the day
- Increased work-related stress in the last week

Test Reports / Readings

- Temperature: 100.8°F
- Blood pressure: 118/76 mmHg
- Heart rate: 88 bpm
- No lab reports attached

Questions for Doctor

1. Could this be a viral infection or something more serious?
2. Should blood tests be done?
3. Is the current medication sufficient?